

Olive or Twist? : A Book of Drinking Cartoons

Olive or Twist? serves up a cocktail of laughter, taking in top-shelf treats (Could Chianti, Burgundy, and Rioja all come from the feet of the same Frenchman?) and low-grade liquor (Bar beer options: Import, Domestic, Micro, or Crap?). And Ziegler is just at home in the ritziest bar (Meanwhile at the Cafe de la Mort: Ernest Hemingway is ridiculing Oscar Wildes wine spritzer while Truman Capote takes notes) as he is in the dingiest dive (Slumlords Top o the Tenement Bar & Grill). Heres a sample of some of his other quips: one drinking bum to another: I was once in dire straits, much as you are, my friend, and then I discovered the 97 Napa Valley Cabernets; Jesus at the The Last Supper: One more round and then we should probably order; Boozehound to bartender: Im earlier than usual this evening due to an elevated level of chatter at home. This volume is the ideal pick-me-up, guaranteed not only to banish booze blues but, like the title character, leave the reader begging for more.
