

A visionary collection of hallucinatory comics from South Africa. Fantagraphics Books is proud to announce the debut collection of John Daly, the first book the company has published by a South African cartoonist. Dalys earlier work has been described as Tintin meets the Freak Brothers in the Cape of Good Dope. Indeed, Dalys cartoons, offbeat, hallucinatory, and often hilarious, seems descended from and in some cases an amalgamation of the substance-induced work of Robert Crumb, Gilbert Shelton, Victor Moscoso, and S. Clay Wilson, filtered through the artists own unique vision and sense of the absurd. Dalys approach swings from introverted dreamlike stream-of-consciousness to over-the-top postmodern vaudevillian. Prebably, the centerpiece of this collection, delves into creation, survival, random occurrences and the micro/macrocosm. Told entirely without dialogue, its almost musical in its execution. It unfolds like the storyboard to a wonky existential animated cartoon, and its no surprise that Daly studied animation for two years at Cape Towns City Varsity College. In contrast, Dalys Kobosh and Steve stories come across as a series of routines by a demented Abbott and Costello. Kobosh even visits a down-on-his-luck Bruce Springsteen in one story, while another strip features a pair of micro-fauna questioning their existence as they feed off the rock legends scalp. Stories alternate between full-color and black-and-white and range from representational Jim Jarmusch-like scenarios to wild visual excursions, albeit linear ones. We are pleased to introduce a unique new voice to the world of cartooning and predict Dalys mix of deadpan absurdity and surreal imagery will be greeted with enthusiasm by readers and critics alike. Black-and-white comics throughout
